EDITORIAL

Now that the Flexi-hours situation has had a chance to settle down, it is gratifying to see how many pubs are advertising their opening times outside. A thirsty customer approaching such an establishment is more likely to return when he knows that it will be open than try again on the off-chance.

Not so satisfactory is the situation regarding price lists. By law these must be prominently displayed and legible to customers. How frequently one needs a telescope to read them even if they are not behind another notice or totally non-existent! (Prices marked on pumps, clips, optics, etc, are permissible). Are some gov'nors simply negligent, ignorant of the law or downright ashamed of what the are charging us drinkers? In many London pubs they most certainly should be.

Another successful GBBF is behind us. Hard work, but good fun. However, working as I was on glasses, it saddening to hear several complaints about prices. It seems that it has still not sunk into some festival goers that the staff are unpaid volunteers giving up their free time performing often thankless tasks. As I touched no beer the entire time just cider and perry at staff rates, I couldn't comment. But it should be obvious to even the most disgruntled punter that, as brewers rarely supply sale-orreturn, a certain mark up is necessary to cover losses. It is unlikely (to say the least) that the last pint is drawn as time is called, and we don't want to run out early. We can do without that sort of attitude. After all, who is doing a favour to whom?

3rd CHAPPEL BEER FESTIVAL MAIDSTONE BEER FESTIVAL

Once again CAMRA in Essex are getting together with the Stour Valley Railway Preservation Society to organise the 3rd Chappel Beer Festival which is being held from Wednesday 6th to Saturday 9th September. As before, the event is being held at the East Anglian Museum at Chappel & Wakes Colne Station just off the A604 half way between Halstead and Colchester (near the big viaduct). A total of 40 beers are expected and the admission charge of 50 pence (free to CAMRA members) will also allow admittance to the railway museum during daylight hours.

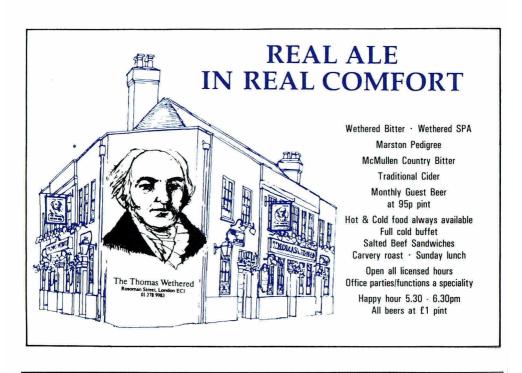

Opening times are 5pm to 11pm on Wednesday and 11am to 4pm & 5pm to 11pm on Thursday to Saturday. There will be entertainment on Friday evening and Saturday. Free parking is available and there are regular trains from Colchester, Marks Tey, Bures and Sudbury. It is hoped to organise a late train back to Marks Tey and Colchester.

Also on Saturday 9th September for those further south is the Maidstone Beer Festival at the Museum of Kent Rural Life and Standing, Maidstone organised by Maidstone and Mid Kent branch of CAMRA. The festival will open from 11am to 11pm and will feature 40+beers food (quoted as better than last year!), entertainment and traditional hop picking.

Admission will cost £1.50 which also gives entry to the museum. The museum is 400 yards from the M20/A229 Junction or can be reached by bus route 155 from Maidstone East Station. Alternatively take bus 101 to the Running Horse 400 yards away.

More information can be obtained from Jeff Tucker on Snodland (0634) 241538, He advises you come early to avoid disappointment

Book review

- Where to drink in Berkshire

The 5th beer guide to Berkshire was published in July. Every pub in the Royal County was surveyed, but only the vast majority serving real beer are featured. Most Morland pubs are omitted as all but a handful use blanket pressure. That company has also expressed the intention to cease marketing cask - conditioned beer.

The mammoth task of research has been carried out well, and seems in some circumstances to have been hampered by lack of co - operation in certain pubs when cross - checking information. These are clearly indicated. The descriptions are well written and interesting, as are introductory paragraphs under a fair number of place names. Local maps are clear and useful, but regretably there is no index or section on "How to use the guide" which would help in locating the county map to find any specific place by its usefully and provided grid references by the names. The map is, in fact, on pages 80 and 81 (out of 84) - it took me some time to locate it along with the key to facility symbols on the same pages. They would be far better as near to the front cover as possible, and why on earth is it that no two beer guides have the same set of symbols?

Features of the "Editorial" content are a list of brewers and beers available, brewery takovers, the situation regarding Wethered and Morlands, drinking and living, guest beers, CAMRA, the brewing process and, of course, the definition of real ale.

This is an attractive publication, printed on A5 paper similar in quality and size to the page on which this item appears. It is a pity that the "perfect" system of binding was chosen, a misnomer if ever I heard one. Involving the pages being simply glued inside the spine. Any such books which come into my possesion invariably end up as "loose - leaf" versions during my customary transfering of ticks and comments from previous editions. However, this guide is well worth the cover price of £1.95. An update list will be available on request at the end of the year.

IDLE MOMENTS

Now I know that people actually read all this tosh every month. Last month I resorted to putting in my own non-rhyming limerick and said the cupboard was bare and so along comes Roger Jacobson from Bow with two more. Yes, I thought that name was familiar as well so I checked and sure enough, he contributed four of them which we printed between October and December last year. I'm only going to print one of them this month as there is a special treat coming up in a little while - read on and you will find out what it is. Anyway here is Roger's first:

A man on a beer drinking trial drank a pint or two of Young's Special, but it so blew his mind and it gave him such wind that in future he stuck to lime cordial.

You'll never guess what comes next. Oh all right it's the number puzzle again - and as usual we'll kick off with last month's answers:

- 1. 7 Pillars of Wisdom (T.E.Lawrence)
- 2. 13 Unlucky for some
- 3. 24 Carat pure Gold
- 4. 2 Sides to Every Story
- 5. 21 Shillings in a Guinea
- 6. 100 Boiling point of water (Celsius)
- 7. 9 Doctor's Orders
- 8. 13 Players in a Rugby League Team
- 9. 22 Yards in a Chain
- 10. 88 Two Fat Ladies

And to follow the well known formula here are some for this month

- 1. 13 S in an O
- 2. 12 S on a TSG
- 3. 168 S on a S of D (DS)
- 4. 1 ED in a L.Y
- 5. 21 K of the D
- 6. 3 V on a T
- 7. 2400 PA is the WH
- 8. 15 P in a RUT
- 9. 273 (M) is AZ (C)
- 10. 9 H on a BBT

Did you guess which of last month's brewery anagrams was one of fifteen? If you did then the next few months may be a bit easier for you (though probably less exciting). Still, to put you out of your misery here are the answers to them:

1. A FURY MIXER
2. HATES KNOTS
THEAKSTONS

3. RIDGED PEOPLE ELDRIDGE POPE 4. DATE ON FIRE FEDERATION

5. SLAM THIS EMU SAMUEL SMITH
And to keep you interested (Well, maybe) here are five more to play around with:

- 1. SEW ROLF
- 2. THOSE PINS
- 3. PAVED SNORT
- 4. MEL RAPS
- 5. JOE, THAT'S YULE

Little did I realise when I started the mirror writing bit how many people would relish writing about vomiting tomatoes, Neil Rutherford of Slough doesn't say in this poem that it is actually the said love apple that he is chucking up but they are both there:

I AIM MY MOUTH AT MY TUMMY, VOW TO VOMIT AT MY MUMMY, A WHIM TO OUTWIT MAMMOTH YOUTH, WHO AIM TOMATO AT MY TOOTH.

And now this is it! You will remember (because I keep going on about it) that Denys Vernall offered a prize of £5 for the first mirror writing non-rhyming limerick. Well the same poet has produced one of those too. The trouble is that he is too ashamed to accept the prize (according to his letter) as the limerick is ridiculous in its meaning (that wouldn't worry me) but Denys has already given me the fiver on the strength of it - Neil asks that if no-one else sends one in the money should go to a deserving cause. So you see the prize could still be up for grabs. Anyway here is the poem in question:

MIA YHTOMIT WOH YTTAT WOH
MIH TA OTAMOT TIMOV OT
HTUOM MUMIXAM HTIW
HTUOY TOH TIWTUO OT
"MI" HTIW YMMUT YM OOTTAT I

Actually Neil started the last line with the word HE, so I had to alter it slightly - I hope I didn't muck up the meaning

FULLERS NEWS

MOVING ON: Two well known and well liked figures have departed the Fuller's scene from the West Middlesex branch area. Gordon Kearns, the long standing tenant of the RED LION in Ealing, W5, has decided to call it a day and retire to the country. His pub will be known to many of you as it features on the front cover of Real Beer in West London. Gordon's pub has been a regular entry in the Good Beer Guide and the good news is that his manager of some years, Ken, has been asked to stay on as licensee of the pub which now comes under Griffin Inns - the managed arm of Fullers.

The other departure is of Gil Cooray, the popular manager of the RED LION & PINEAPPLE in Acton, W3, who has left Booker & Sons after spending over eight years at the pub. His skill at keeping beer was reflect by eight consecutive entries in the GBG. Gil is on the look-out for his own tenancy somewhere in West London. We wish both him and Gordon every success for future.

THE PRESSURE IS OFF: Some excellent news for Fullers drinkers in Ealing. Following the recent conversion of the WHEATSHEAF to handpumps comes news of the CASTLE, St, Mary's Road, W5. At last handpumps have sprouted in this fine little pub and early reports indicate that the beer is in very good nick. This leaves the appalling FEATHERS (Berni, deafening disco music, bouncers, dress code and "keg" Fullers from invisible taps) as the last remaining "Sweet-shop" in W5. No chance of this one going real until the leaseholders - Berni Inns - have a change of policy, and that's as likely as Watney's now producing a decent drop of beer.

As we go to press we have just heard that the SIX BELLS in Brentford High Street has also gone real. This basic one bar pub features live music most nights as well as bed & breakfast facilities

MORE GOOD NEWS: The last Fullers fizz pub outside of Greater London, THE SWAN at The Hythe, Staines has also converted to handpumps. This leaves only four Fullers pubs not selling beer by CAMRA approved methods: the RED LION in Brentford; the PADDINGTON PACKET BOAT in Cowley; the VIADUCT in Hanwell, W7 and the above mentioned FEATHERS in Ealing. However, one of these is due for conversion very soon.

CHANGES: The NARROW BOAT, Ladbroke Grove, W10 has recently undergone a change of tenant, Di and Linton Culbert of the LORD NELSON, Brentford have taken the pub on and overseeing the operation are daughter and son in law Teresa and Geoffrey Yeats. Geoffrey has just joind CAMRA and is disposing of large quantities of London Drinkers every month to avid readers. All CAMRA members will be made especially welcome - just make yourselves known.

AND FINALLY: Following Her experience at the QUEENS HEAD, Stepney (a Youngs house), the Queen Mother has obviously got a taste for decent London beer. She dropped into the SALUTATION in Hammersmith last July to pull a pint of ESB. She must be a CAMRA member and was clearly doing Her bit for the July "Independents" promotion. (Memo to HO - we ought to be told!)

LONDON DRINKER WRITERS' COMPETTITION

FIRST PRIZE £30

Can you wite an article (not less than 250 words) on an aspect of Beer, Brewing, Pubs, Licensing etc relating to the Greater London area for publication in this magazine?

Entries to the editors whose decision is final.

All runners up articles published will recieve £10

Closing Date 31st October 1989

THE GLASSBLOWER, W1

Recently transferred from Clifton Inns to Chef & Brewer, there have been several changes at the Glassblower. Alex Savile, the former manager and ardent supporter of both the Real Ale cause and the London Drinker, has left the district and the pub no longer sells this magazine.

The gas lights remain as do the bare floorboards. However, the slate tiles with chalk inscriptions of inane comments heard there such as "Free House what brewery is that?" - have gone. Gone also is the old wall decor to be replaced by reproductions of old prints of the glassblowing process (in former days a local industry) and the beams bear quantities of metal beer casks and large spirit bottles. Eleven handpumps are in evidence. On a recent visit (22/7/89) seven were dispensing different real ales, and one Bullmans Traditional Cider - at £1.45 a pint. The price list was visible, and legible provided no more than one person was standing by the wall at the end of the bar where it is located.

Our informant was of the impression that the average price for real beers was between £1.40 and £1.50, but admits to being no mathematician. The Glassblower seems to be in the running for the dearest pub in London - any other contenders?

M.S.

BEER BRIEFING

LONDON BEER GUIDES UPDATE 46

The pub and real ale scene in London is constantly changing. The aim of this column is to keep "London Drinker" readers up to date with events as they happen and record confirmed changes to pubs and beers as they are reported. This month we welcome a brand new Docklands riverside pub; a new station bar and two further Fullers conversions to real ale. The latter leave just four Fullers pubs using  $\mathrm{CO}_2$  dispense in their entire estate. More Belhaven acquisitions have been reported but few have real ale. The silly season in renamings continues unabated.

The numbers in brackets after each entry are intended to make it easy to update your London beer guides. They refer to page numbers in the East London & City Beer Guide, 2nd edition (E prefix); the North London Beer Guide, 2nd edition (N prefix); the South East London Pub Guide, 3rd edition (SE prefix), Real Beer in South West London (SW prefix); Real Beer in West London (W prefix); the Essex Beer Guide, 7th edition (X prefix) or previous updates (U prefix).

If you would like to report changes to pubs or beers please write to: Beer Guides Updates, 2 Sandtoft Road, London SE7 7LR.

Historicrawl: Smithfield and Clerkenwell

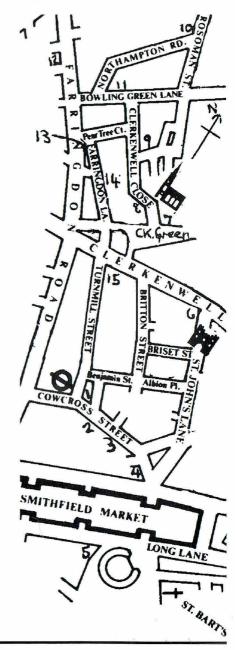

Time - in the form of the editorial team was snapping at my heels just before press date. So despite the fact this offering has been in preparation for 18 months and more, it is being dashed of at the last minute, with gaps left in my manuscript which hopefully will have been filled after on-the-spot final research - i.e. an unscheduled pub crawl. Be warned most pubs mentioned do not open on weekends. This crawl visits 15 pubs with 29 real beers. We begin at Farringdon Station, formerly the city terminus of the world's first underground railway - the Metropolitan - and now served by both London Transport and the B.R. Thameslink service. Left outside the station and we find the Castle, Cawcross Street (1), Bass and Charrington IPA. Featured before in these pages, it has a pawnbrokers licence, dating back to the 1820's when King George IV found it necessary to borow money temporily from the landlord on security of the monarch's watch and chain.

Across the road, the three compasses (2) is on a site occupied by a pub from 1720. Attractively rebuilt after bombing in the blitz, it now serves Truman Best, Ruddles Best and County, Websters Yorkshire and Bulmers Traditional cider on the handpump.

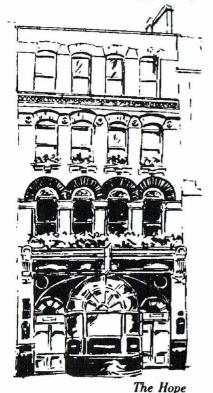

Cowcross Street is one of the oldest thoroughfares in London, along which were driven cattle for sale in Smithfield Market at the top, until this operation was transferred to Holloway last century.

At one time nearly every building in the street was a pub. Look at their upper storey for evidence of this. Only two others remain, the Blue Posts (3) Charrington IPA and The Hope (4), Websters and Ruddles County. The latter is open from 6.30 am to 6pm, but not at weekends - this is to accommodate the market porters. Note the superb glasswork. Across the road, we pass through the magnificent victorian Smithfield Market., and turn right for the Rutland Hotel (5), also known as the Bishops Finger, for Sheperd Neame . Smithfield was originally "Smooth Field" - the meaning being obvious. This was for many years the scene of fairs and public exibitions. Here Sir William Wallace, the scottish patriot, was judically dismantled, and many protestant martyrs were burned at the stake in the 1550's. Opposite the Rutland is the priory church of St. Bartholomew the Great. All that now remains of that priory, it was founded by Rahere, a courtier ( some versions say a jester) as the result of an oath, when seemingly on the point of death, to found such an institution if spared. He survived, became the first Prior and had the dedication made following a revelation in a dream from that saint. Barts Hospital is of course, still very much in evidence.

Going back through the market, we now take St John's Lane (not street) to our other historical medical connection. St John's Gate is the only mediæval gatehouse left in London, and was the original entrance to the priory of the order of St John of Jerusalmen, who developed as the Knights Hospitaller during the crusades.

This gatehouse is now the headquaters of the St John's Ambulance Brigade (descendants of the order, dissolved in 1540) and houses a fascinating museum. It was built in 1504 to replace a tower structure, and had previously been destroyed in 1381 by rebels who also beheaded the Prior. From 1765 to 1900 part was the "Old Jerusalem Tavern". In 1888 Oueen Victoria granted a charter again making the Order of St John an Order of Chivalry with the monarch as its head. Almost next door, the modern Coach and Horses (6) supplies the Whitbread range, and over the road the Clerkenwell Heritage Centre has a wide range of interesting publications of an historical nature. Going westwards along Clerkenwell Road then turning right into Clerkenwell Green, we next come to the Crown (7) a Nicholson's House featured previously in London Drinker, which serves Adnams Bitter, Ind Coope Burton, Arkells 3B, Tetley and Boddingtons, plus Addlestone's Cider - cask conditioned, but on slight blanket pressure, though nontheless very palatable.

Rather than confusing you with street directions, I will refer you to the map.

The Three Kings (8), Websters, Ruddles Best and County, is a unusually shaped corner pub which was originally the hostelry of the Benedictin Continued on p.16e nunnery of St Mary, whose site is partly occupied by the church of St James - built 1792 - over the road. Next time we will be visiting the Horseshoe (9 Courage) The Thomas Wethered (10 - Whitbread "free"), the Eagle (12 - Banks + Taylor) the Betsey (13 - Shepherd Neame) the City Pride (14 - Fullers) and the Turnmills (15 - free) -

Merton.

BIG BREWERS HIT THE CONSUMER

Less than a week after Lord Young let the Big Six off the hook with his modified version of the MMC recommendations, the brewers demonstrated their disregard for both politicians and the consumer by announcing hefty price rises for a pint of beer.

Bass started the ball rolling and were quickly followed by Whitbread, with the rest of the Six following suit. The average level of the price increase is around six to eight pence which means that London drinkers can now expect to pay £1.20 or more for their pint.

The Big Six claimed the increases had nothing to do with Lord Young's backdown on the MMC report, instead they said they were based on price increases for raw materials, increased production costs and inflation.

It is hard to see how the nationals can justify such large price increases when they have all announced record profits for the last year. Whitbread in particular trumpeted their doubling of profits over last year to £223 million with others as follows: Bass, £448m; S&N, £138m and Allied with £502 million. GrandMet and Courage don't publish separate profit figures for brewing.

It is difficult to see the increases being introduced by coincidence but not difficult to view them as a means of telling Lord Young exactly what they thought of him and the MMC report. Now that their monopoly has remained unbroken the Big Six are showing it is business as usual and they can abuse their stranglehold on the market in any way they like.

This has to be true if the reasons for the price rises are taken into consideration. The cost of raw materials has actually gone down in recent months whilst the increases are nearly double the inflation rate. One of the central planks of the MMC's recommendations for attacking the power of the Big Six was the fact that the cost of a pint of beer has risen 15 per cent higher than inflation. Half of the cost of a barrel is made up of duty and this year one of the highlights of the Chancellor of the Exchequer's budget was the non-increase in the amount of duty being levied.

A Bass spokesman even had the audacity to say advertising costs were also to blame. The vast majority of advertising spending is for lager and even here the purpose is not for increasing sales but to carve out a bigger market share for the proliferating number of brands. Quite why the consumer should pay for the privilege of watching the brewers try to outdo each other with pointless TV ads for fake lager is beyond the pale.

But the poor consumer has always been the well-spring of the nationals' greed for greater brewing profits which is why the MMC was asked to investigate. They found that a monopoly existed and that it was against the public interest - in short, something should be done about it.

In failing to tackle the problem as strongly as he should, Lord Young has given the Big Six the freedom to go on making huge profits from the consumer. The MMC report was meant to protect the drinker, instead the modifications have already been shown to have not made the national brewers afraid of their actions despite the three year review planned by the Government.

Lord Young described this as the "Sword of Damocles" hanging over the industry saying, "If things have not improved by then, the Director General of Fair Trading will set things in motion again."

Following the recent reshuffle of Government Ministers the drinking public can perhaps have a little hope of improvement in their chance of a fair deal, as Lord Young's successor has recently announced his intention of taking positive action againsed the large brewers. We await detiles of his planes with Interest. However, one benefit of the price increases is that it has thrown the independent brewers once more into the limelight as the only true champions of choice and value for money. Just as the guest beer policy must create greater awareness of their beer the competitive price of a pint in their pubs must now make it even more worthwhile in seeking them out.

UP TO SCRATCH

Welcome to the ranks of real ale, one Michael Ramsey of Barking, Essex. He has given up drinking lager because it brought him out in an unsightly rash.

Most people just see red when told the price of a pint of lagerade.

Said Michael, now 22 "I've been drinking lager since I was 16 but I never dreamt of associating it with the rash".

As the years passed and the rash got nastier he went to the doctor who at first suggested he had an allergy to perfume. So home he went and told girl friend Cherer Twohig (I kid you not) to throw her Chanel in the canal.

But it made no difference. Michael just got spottier and went back to the quack. Intensive allergy tests followed and finally the grim truth was revealed: he was allergic to the lout's delight.

"I was stunned," said Michael. "Fancy not being able to drink lager any more. It's bitter for me now!"

He did not reveal which lager had been his favourite tipple. Not Red Stripe, I trust.

A LIKELY STORY!

Did you hear about the Big 7 licensee who was in bother for chucking Best Bitter all over a troublesome customer?

Quite right, too: people who live in Bass houses shouldn't throw Stones.

From the Alesman

Britain's drinkers would be best advised to start taking their ale in the pubs of the small brewers if they are disgruntled at the prospects of swingeing and totally arbitrary price increases from the Big Six. It may be difficult to avoid the dominance of the big brewers' tied estates but voting with the feet is the only way to tell the Big Six that they cannot get away with it.

'Drinker'contest

Our cover this month shows the Price Lists in two London pubs (or to be strictly accurate, one pub and one Station bar). Both carry a wide selection of Real Ales, many of which are common to both establishments. The amenities in the two places are not all that different. Only the prices vary widely.

One of these establishments is in the running for our "Most Overpriced London Pub of the Year" award; the other is likely to prove a contender for "Best Value London Pub of the Year".

LONDON DRINKER is running this two-part contest as an alternative to the EVENING STANDARD's "Pub of the Year" Competition because we feel that the STANDARD has not got its own format right. With beer prices having taken something of a knock recently with the Brewers' rise and the Budget, we believe that a lot of drinkers are becoming more and more price-conscious. The high priced pub whose list is pictured on the cover is in fact a finalist in the STANDARD's competition, which suggests that value for money is not a criterion which will be taken into account by the Judging Panel. Presumably they will discuss with great eagerness the merits of a pub which has freshly squeezed orange juice, and whether it rates higher than another establishment which can offer you passion fruit juice for your lager, but while such crucial issues are being decided, it will be some lackey from the paper who has to hand over the money (if drinks for the panel of nonentities and sub-stars are not free, that is). The judges will in all probability not be asked to take price and value into account, and we regard this as a trifle unrealistic.

The form opposite has two sections, one for each part of the contest. Fill in either or both with the details as indicated and send it off to us. The form will appear again next month, and the final closing date will be October 31st. The names of the winners, and of as many runners-up as deserve mention, will be published in December's LONDON DELEMER, and suitable awards will be made to the winners. And here you have the chance to win a couple of galions of ale from us. When you send in the pub details, suggest in the space provided, a suitable prize for the pub which wins the "Most Overpriced" Section. The best idea will, if it is practicable, be implemented and the suggestor will get the two gallons.

Flease remember that we are not looking for the highest priced pint of beer, or the cheapest pint, but the best value or poorest value. A pint of strong beer like Ruddles' County or Old Feculier will obviously cost more than a pint of Young's Mild. So please take into account what the brews are when submitting your entry.

Congratulations are due to Gerry Colvin, licensee of the Seven Stars in Footscray. He recently won the South Eastern Regional section of the "Best-Kept Cellar" competition for Charrington Houses. The first-rate pint of IPA from this Good Beer Guide listed pub is only 35p too. Yet again we see an example of quality going hand in hand with value.

Below is the price list referred to oposite and is reproduced from the front cover of the September 1979 edition of London Drinker.

	PUB 'A'	PUB 'B'
SAM SMITH OLD BREWERY BITTER	41 p
WATNEY LONDON BITTER	-	50p
RAYMENTS BBA	41 p	45p
GREENE KING ABBOT	46 p	52p
RUDDLES BITTER	41p	46p
RUDDLES COUNTY	46p	54p
ARKELLS KINGSDOWN	-	78p

Ten years on and those of us who drink in London Still face overpriced beer. Just ad £1 to the above and we almost have current prices.

NEWS FROM FULLERS HAND PUMPS!

Also open for breakfast 8am-11am Monday - Friday

Ales: Adnams, Arkells, Boddingtons, Draught Burton Ale, Tetley Bitter, Marston Pedigree. Cask conditioned Addlestone Cider.

DEAR DIPSY

Dear Dipsy

I am most perturbed by the use of pseudonyms by those who send in completed crosswords to your Magazine. Are they shy of getting the credit for completing such a superbly compiled puzzle? Names like Count Famine, B. A. Prat, Dengie 100, and worst of all Bill Andrews. Who in their right mind would call a child names like these.

Surely the Editors (God Bless 'em) should weed out these pseudonyms and insist that all entrants own up to their achievements.

Evan Izzahere

Dear Evan

I can understand your concern, but you must realize that sometimes the geniuses of this world are shy and do want to hide behind these other names so that they can then enjoy a normal social life, drinking with ordinary mortals of limited intelligence (such as the Editors of this magazine).

Dipsy That is Quite Enough ... Ed

Dear Dipsy

We have a spiffing cheese plant in our Officers' Mess. The trouble is that it has grown so well over the years that it is almost taking the place over. Do you think the fact that it has been fed for so long on the overspill from behind the bar has got anything to do with its prodigeous size and what do you think we should do about it?

Squadron Leader Fortescue,

RAF Cottesmore

Dear Squaddie

It has obviously benefitted from its nutritional diet and I firmly recommend that you keep it up perhaps with a little discreet pruning. The alternative does not bear thinking about - have you seen a giant cheese plant with withdrawal symptons?

Dipsy

Dear Dipsy

I have been offered sanctuary in one of the Fosters' Lager breweries. Do you think I should accept - they say it could be like one long garden party for me?

Salman Rusty, No fixed abode

Dear Salman

Have you not heard of a fête worse than death?

Dipsy
