Campaign for Real Ale

THE VAST MAJORITY of London's pubs are a complete waste of time to the discerning beer drinker because they serve nothing but pressurised beers. Out of a total of five or six thousand pubs in the Greater London area, only a few hundred serve real ale by traditional methods instead of the kind which is pushed up to the bar by gas pressure. Searching for real ale in Greater London can be like searching for a needle in a haystack.

Real ale is the name given by the Campaign for Real Ale to beer which is brewed from malted barley and hops, stored in casks which allow it to continue fermenting in the cellar, and served by any method which does not involve the use of carbon dioxide gas. Many brewers are now using inferior ingredients like rice grits and hop substitutes to produce their beers and in many cases they filter and pasteurise the beer before it leaves the brewery. In addition, most brewers prefer to store their beer in such a way that a layer of carbon dioxide keeps air away from the beer. This prevents the beer going off, but it invariably produces a gassy pint, often with a sickly taste. In the majority of cases where this system is used the gas also forces the beer from the barrel to the bar—and this aggravates the effects of the gas.

This guide lists pubs in Greater London where the beer is drawn by one of three methods: direct from the cask, with no pumps at all; by beer engine, operated by traditional handpump; or by electric pump, which works in much the same way as a beer engine, with electricity replacing the manual effort. These electric pumps come in many varieties and can easily be mistaken for pressure pumps. But they are relatively rare in London and should therefore cause little confusion.

The pubs listed in this guide do not necessarily serve good beer. They are included merely because they sell real beer—whether they do it well is up to the drinker to find out. This list is also certainly incomplete, but all the pubs known to the London branches of CAMRA have been included.

A needle in a haystack

How to use this guide

THE PUBS have been arranged by postal district, with the numbered areas (EC1, SW5, W8 and so on) being listed in alphabetical order, followed by those districts outside the inner postal area, which are listed under the name of the boroughs. The map on the centre pages shows where each postal district and borough is situated. An atlas of London streets, such as the A to Z Atlas or London Street by Street, should be used to find your way around.

Don't be put off if you find that the brewery name outside the pub isn't the same as the one in the guide. Some pubs owned by one brewery serve other brewers' products, usually by cross-licensing agreements.

Whenever you go into a pub, be sure and ask for real draught beer, for many of those which sell pressurised beer alongside the real thing will foist the pressurised stuff on you if you're not careful.

How you can help

IF YOU FIND that any of the pubs listed does not serve real ale, please let us know. The brewers are converting pubs to pressurised beer all the time and it is a full-time job keeping up to date. Similarly, if you find a pub which does serve real ale but isn't listed, also let us know. The address to write to is Real Beer in London, CAMRA, 94 Victoria Street, St Albans, Herts. AL1 3TG.

The brewers

TWO BREWERIES dominate this guide: Charrington of Mile End, East London, which is part of the Bass Charrington group, and Young, an independent concern at Wandsworth in South-West London, which provides traditional beer in almost all its houses. Unpressurised Charrington beers are to be found in many parts of London. Bass, which is brewed by the same group at Burton-on-Trent, is also available over a wide area of London, either under its own name or as Worthington E, which is the same brew. Both are listed here as Bass. Neither should be confused with the debased, pressurised versions now being spread around.

The other big brewers serve very little unpressurised beer in London. Whitbread have a number of pubs still serving real ale from their brewery in Chiswell Street, EC1, but this is due to be withdrawn later this year. There are also a few houses in West London serving real ale from Whitbread's brewery at Marlow in Buckinghamshire. Courage have a handful of real draught houses in London and Allied Breweries serve Ind Coope beer by traditional methods at three or four pubs. Scottish and Newcastle Breweries have recently begun to withdraw real ale from their London outlets and the Watney Mann-Truman group, with a near monopoly in many areas, serves no unpressurised beer at all in Greater London.

Seven other brewers offer real ale in London: Fuller of Chiswick (eight houses on draught); Greene King of Bury St, Edmunds (one on draught), Marston of Burton-on-Trent (one), Ruddle of Rutland (four), Shepherd Neame of Faversham (four), Thwaites of Blackburn (one) and McMullen of Hertford (three). Some of these companies also provide traditional draught beer for clubs in the area, but these are not covered in this guide.

The Campaign for Real Ale

CAMRA is a democratic organisation run mainly on a voluntary basis, with the help of a small staff. Since it was formed in 1971, it has fought against overwhelming odds to preserve and promote real ale. CAMRA has no outside financial support, but it has already begun to give the beer drinker a say in what he drinks.

If you are not already a member, you can join by sending £1 to the Campaign for Real Ale, 94 Victoria Street, St. Albans, Herts. AL1 3TG.
